In Advance of February 24 Civility Meeting, Carnahan will meet with, take questions from St. Louis families

(ST. LOUIS, MO) – On Tuesday, February 22, Representative Russ Carnahan (MO-3) will hold a Neighborhood Town Hall Meeting in South St. Louis, where he will take questions from area constituents. The open meeting is the first of the year and is part of Carnahan's ongoing efforts to engage with constituents through a wide range of forums, including town hall meetings, kitchen table discussions, one-on-one conversations and telephone town halls.

Carnahan's Neighborhood Town Hall Meeting will take place at Grbic's restaurant in South St. Louis City on Tuesday, February 22, and will be open to constituents and to the media. Due to space limitations, RSVPs are required.

or they can

call the Carnahan District Office at 314-962-1523

Tuesday's Town Hall will take place two days before he and Republican Congresswoman Jo Ann Emerson will participate in a public forum hosted by Washington University's Danforth Center on Religion & Politics to discuss the importance of civil discourse in a democratic society. In a discussion moderated by Danforth Center Director Wayne Fields, PhD, Carnahan and Emerson – who are Co-Chairs of the Congressional Center Aisle Caucus – will discuss the roles that citizens, elected leaders, and the media can play in promoting civil discourse. The forum will take place at 4:00 p.m. Central Time on Thursday, February 24, in the Main Dining Room of the Knight Center at Washington University.
